Wisdom For The Week:

For a wife take the daughter of a good mother.

There was a lady who had to wait a long time at the airport for her next flight. So she went to the little magazine shop in the airport, bought a bag of cookies and a book to read. She went to the waiting chairs and sat down, put all her stuff in the chair next to her and started to read the book. She took a cookie and ate it. Then she noticed that the man sitting in the chair next to her stuff took a cookie too. She was very up set but did not say anything. Then she ate another cookie and noticed he took another one. Again she tried to just read the book and ignore him. But every time she took a cookie he took one too. She was so irritated. Finally they got to the last cookie. She was wondering what he would do now. Sure enough he took her last cookie. But he broke it in half and gave her half of it. How rude she thought. Then the call came for her plane and she was so relieved. She just got up and went to the gate and did not even look back at that terrible, rude man. When she got in the plane and all settled she reached in her bag to get her book out to finish reading it and to her shock there was her bag of cookies, still in her bag UNOPENED.

Make it a wonderful and happy week!!!!
