Wisdom For The Week :

When you allow others to offend you,
it is a reflection on your character not theirs.

Here is the ultimate in frustration.....

Recently all the emails from a certain college were being rejected back to the senders. In the email rejection message it said that due to a power being out on campus there was no phone service and no emails could be received by the college. In the email rejection notice it also said at the end that if you urgently needed to contact someone to please just call them.

Consumer TipS

If it is really hot and you don't have an air conditioner, here is something you can try. Go to the store and buy a big block of ice (or 2) and then put them in a little tub in front of the fan.

Make sure the tub is big enough to hold all of the melting water. Now turn on the fan and let the air blow across the block of ice. TA DA... you have a mini-one-room air conditioner (well for a couple of hours at least).
